

Abstract

A system for removing gas bubbles from blood during circulatory assist procedures. An active filter apparatus forces the bubbles to the center of the system where they 5 are removed from the blood before the blood exits the filter.